The CFPB recently proposed a new rule to require debt collection validation notices to include a number of specific datapoints about the consumer's account, information about how a consumer may respond to a collection attempt, and a "tear-off" form that consumers may send back to respond to the collection attempt. The webinar will analyze the proposal including, the required validation notice proposed content requirements; proposed clarification of providing non-English language validation notices, model notice, and intersection of the validation requirements with the rulemaking's communication and E-SIGN Act proposal.
